Back from away, with tales to tell ...

CAMEL-BACK ON THE MONGOLIAN STEPPES—Becky Chandler of Woodstock recently finished a two-year stint with the Peace Corp in Mongolia, where she worked to improve health care and ambulance procedures. That isn't a cigarette in Joe Cool's mouth; it's a bit. But cigarettes smoking is, Chandler said, one of the prime health-care problems in Mongolia. (Photo by Jane Chandler) of helping to improve health care in Mongolia

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

Mongolia, the native land of Genghis Kahn, is nestled between China and Russia. For the last two years, Mongolia was also the home of Becky Chandler. Her parents claim she went there to find central heating.

Chandler really went to Mongolia to serve in the Peace Corp. She lived in Erdenet, third largest city. There, she drew on her experience as an EMT for the Tri-Town and Med-Care ambulance services, and taught first aid and basic health care at the only Mongolian hospital in the city. The legacy she left behind may well help save lives for years to come.

"They had no pre-hospital first aid," Chandler said. "They had an ambulance, but the whole thing was to drive fast, not to treat before they got to the hospital."

Chandler created a dispatcher manual for the ambulance — the one operating ambulance serving the entire city of 75,000 people.

"It contains basic questions for the caller, instructions on how to treat different things, and a way of prioritizing calls."

Before Chandler's manual, a patient who was choking might choke to death on the long ride to the hospital. But with a list of screening questions and procedures, simple problems — such as choking — no longer need be life threatening. The manual has a page on how to perform the Heimlich maneuver. It is written in Mongolian, and includes illustrations.

Chandler said that common medical problems included hepatitis, tuberculosis, high cholesterol from the high fat diet, and respiratory disease among the many people who smoke Russian cigarettes. And the quality of medical care of a Roman villa deep in an English plum orchard

By WENDY ISEMAN

For the first time in 41 years I have a phenomenal answer to the question, "What did you do on your summer vacation?"

This past July I traveled to the United Kingdom, to the town of Faversham, 90 minutes east of London by train, to take part in an archaeological dig. The goal: to unearth a bathhouse that was originally part of a Roman villa.

I attended a five-day work session at the Kent Archaeological Field School run by Dr. Paul Wilkinson and his wife, Louise.

Dr. Wilkinson is a classical archaeologist and a former marine archaeologist and art historian. He

Spelt, emmer, tattooed 'pirates,' a race against time, and at the end of the day, two pints of Scrumpy Jack started his field school to instruct and delight the legions of amateur and budding archaeologists in the UK. Unlike the United States, where people look at you cockeyed when you mention going on an archaeological dig, archeology is a bona fide hobby to thousands of history-mad Brits. Joined by one Australian, a fellow American and 24 Brits, we set out to dig up a Roman bathhouse nestled under a plum orchard.

Before we set foot in the orchard we were given a brief but thorough history of the Romans in the area known as Kent, "the garden spot of England."

The Romans established a series of villas from the first to the third centuries in the area around Faversham. Twenty-two villas are known to exist as of today.

The villa structure is exactly the same throughout the Roman Empire — North Africa, Spain, Gaul and the UK. Located near sites of fresh water springs, each villa consists of a main house with twin towers, an attached bathhouse and an adjacent household garden. The huge courtyard contains structures for animals and storage. Each villa was contained by a wall and supported approximately 200 people, often extended family members. Between 2000-3000 acres were devoted to agriculture including corn (our wheat), spelt, emmer and tree fruits.

The Romans were also very adept at producing pottery; they set up manufacturing sites to produce tiles for building and clay containers for shipping olive oil, wine and other foodstuffs.

Each morning after an hour lecture — and I hesitate to call it a lecture because it was so interesting and so unlike school — we piled into the Field School bus and traveled about 10 miles to the Deerton.

CLARIFICATION
Androscoggin Acres assessments. The article in last week's Citizen regarding the revaluation of lots in some Bethel subdivisions should have noted that the lot in Androscoggin Acres, belonging to Bethel Assessor John Head, that increased less in value than did other lots in that subdivision, does not have river frontage, as do the lots that increased more substantially in value.

The Citizen certainly regrets this omission, but we must point out that the information in question is nowhere in evidence in the public record available in the Town Office. Information for last week's article was drawn directly from town Property Assessment Forms (or "assessment cards"), and these cards currently make no mention of water frontage. The forms do include boxes for information such as: "property factors — topography," but on the cards for the lots in Androscoggin Acres there are no entries in any of these boxes — i.e., the boxes are all blank on the card for John Head's property, and they are blank on the cards for other lots in the subdivision.

And the other relevant source of such information, the town's Assessors' Pricing Manual (a copy is available in the Town Office) makes no mention of different valuations for riverfront and non-riverfront land. The manual was prepared in 1988 and is currently being updated by the town's contracted assessor, TA Associates of West Paris. The update will include frontage factors, according to assessor Wade Rainey, but that information is not yet on hand in the Town Office.

Firefighters battle late-summer blazes

Danger remains high, despite Tuesday's rain

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Showers overnight into Tuesday morning brought much needed moisture to the area — but not enough to douse the end-of-summer fire danger.

In less than two weeks firefighters statewide have battled more than 70 fires, including a number in western Maine, according to Jim Downey, spokesman for the Maine Forest Service.

And that figure does not include numerous smaller fires that have been dealt with by local departments, Downey said.

Many of the fires have been started by summer thunderstorms, including a fast-moving storm that passed through the area Friday afternoon.

The ground is so dry, Downey said, that underground fires can smolder for more than a week before breaking through to the surface.

Locally, firefighters and volunteers contained a quarter-acre fire discovered Sunday afternoon near Outward Bound in Newry.

By Monday evening the fire was out, according to Newry Fire Chief Gary Wight.

Firefighters from Bethel and Newry, along with volunteers from Outward Bound had to haul water and equipment for 30 to 40 minutes to reach the blaze, Wight said.

One firefighter was treated by Bethel Rescue for heat exhaustion, Wight said.

On Monday, a fire off Rumford Avenue in Woodstock was contained by firefighters from that town and nearby Greenwood.

It took firefighters about three hours to put out the blaze, according to Local Elvis impersonator wins trip to Graceland

By ALISON ALOISIO

Brandon Moore did his first public impersonation of Elvis Presley at age eight, at Neil Olson's annual Trappers' Convention in East Bethel. Now, after winning a recent Elvis impersonation contest at the Maine Mall, the Bethel native is preparing for his first visit to the late singer's Graceland home.

Moore won the trip to Tennessee after besting 15 other impersonators at an Aug. 10 competition, which was sponsored by radio station WHOM. The event was part of the observance of the 25th anniversary of Presley's death.

The competitors, said Moore, were randomly assigned a Presley song to sing. Moore drew "Heartbreak Hotel" — not one of his favorites to perform.

"It's hard to get the timing down," said Moore.

But one line into his rendition, the audience gathered at the mall erupted in cheers and applause.

"I faked it pretty good," said Moore modestly.

Good enough to edge out another performer, from Massachusetts, and win the Graceland trip.

Moore has never visited before, and going this year will be special, he said. He leaves Sept. 5 for the three-day trip.

Discovered by Olson

Moore, who grew up in East Bethel and graduated from Telstar High School in 1991, was only four when Presley died. But, he said, when he first heard the King's music at a young age, "that was it." He was hooked. He began playing around at imitating Presley.

A friend of the Olson family, Moore said he often visited their house. One day, "I said, 'Watch this, I can do Elvis.' He (Neil) thought it was cute," said Moore.

New school year kicks off next week with some fresh faces at the top

By ALISON ALOISIO

"A new era for our school system."

That's how Dave Murphy is describing the launch of the 2002-2003 school year, which is set for Tuesday, Aug. 27.

Returning students will find a new superintendent (Murphy), a new elementary principal (Rick Colpitts), a new high/middle school principal (Shawn Lambert) and a new director of adult education (Jean Manson Waite).

Despite a largely new cast of administrative characters, Murphy is expecting a smooth start.

He said Colpitts, who comes to SAD44 from the Hartford-Summer Elementary School, is an experienced principal who is quickly learning the particulars of this district. Lambert, who steps in after serving as assistant principal of Lewiston High School, brings the strength and confidence of having worked in a large school system.

Murphy, who has served in both Colpitts' and Lambert's positions himself, plans to visit his new administrators weekly to provide sup-

TROUBLING QUESTIONS

To the Editor:

Your article on the recent gas pipeline leak raises a few troubling questions:

1) PNGTS said the leak was reported by a landowner, but how did the landowner become aware of the leak in the first place? Was it audible, or did the landowner smell it? Was the "grease valve fitting" in question underground?

2) PNGTS said the valve in question was scheduled for routine maintenance the next day, but when was the last time it was checked? Has it been checked since it was installed?

3) How many similar valves/fittings exist along the line, and are there plans to inspect these? The fact that they were all installed at about the same time, presumably by the same crew, suggests the potential for common mode failure. If it were my pipeline, I'd be checking them.

4) Of the two hotline numbers you printed, the one in the phone book and the one in the information package, which number does PNGTS recommend and does it reach a person or a recording?

5) How certain is PNGTS that all residents were given information packages with the hotline number? I have owned property that fronts on East Bethel Road, across the street from the pipeline, since before the pipeline went in. I have lived on that property for the past two years, but I have yet to receive such a package.

All informed parties seem to describe the incident as minor, which is just as well. Let it be a minor incident that causes PNGTS to review its procedures, rather than a major incident.

A REASON FOR LOWER VALUATION

To the Editor:

I am upset and deeply offended by Zicarelli's front page article in your Aug. 15, 2002 edition. She clearly implies that there is something very wrong with the assessment of my house lot in Androscoggin Acres on Barker Road in West Bethel. I am sure you will agree that a newspaper has an obligation to tell the whole story, not just a part of the whole story. What Zicarelli fails to mention is the fact that the other four lots in the subdivision each have more than 300 feet of frontage on the Androscoggin River. My house lot, owned by me since 1987, has no, repeat no, frontage on the river and is simply a house lot on Barker Road. It should come as no surprise to Zicarelli that property with shore frontage is assessed substantially higher than a like lot with no shore frontage.

This is but the latest of a series of personal attacks on me by Zicarelli this year. It is, in my opinion, the first one to cross that invisible line that separates reportage and slander. I believe I have every right to demand, and receive, clarification on this matter on Page 1 of your next edition accompanied by an apology from Zicarelli.

I eagerly await the clarification and Mrs. Zicarelli's apology.

NOT BALANCED AND INFORMED

To the Editor:

I was dismayed to read the two articles on the Board of Assessors and the subdivision situation in the 15 August issue. The headlines were designed to attract attention rather than convey the fact a developer was questioning the land values for taxation. In the accompanying articles, there was a failure, in my opinion, to provide a balanced and informed view of the situation. The implication that one of the assessors had not received the same treatment as the other owners of lots in one subdivision was particularly misleading. His lot has no Androscoggin River frontage, which means that it would ordinarily command a substantially lower value than the others. The characterization of the deliberations of the Board of Assessors as operating by "memory and recall" was certainly unfortunate as any changes in taxation are reflected on abatement forms which are signed by the assessors and are part of the public record for all to view if desired. If more tax liability is determined, there can also be supplemental billings as well. On the question of a reevaluation of the town, we as a board believe (currently with one dissenter) that the town should start the process of planning for one as soon as possible. We also know that no system of valuation will be totally without errors, but our goal is always to treat everyone as fairly as possible. Every year, all additions to the tax rolls are valued based on our assessment procedures. In addition, our professional assessor attempts to take one class of property annually to see how it has fared since the value was set in the late 1980s. With the current "hot" real estate market, particularly in Oxford County, subdivisions are a logical focus this year. In this way, we are visiting similar groups of property regularly in an attempt to maintain values approaching state standards, which affects the level of funds received from the state. We know, however, that large segment of the tax base is residential property and only a full town-wide professional valuation will address that situation in the comprehensive manner prescribed by Maine law.

The Board of Assessors is essentially volunteers elected for three-year terms (each paid the "munificent" sum of $100 per year) to work with the town's professional assessor. Our meetings are held the first Wednesday of the month at the town office conference room and are open to anyone interested in attending.

In the future, I hope The Citizen will take more care in covering the public's business in a more objective and complete manner.

Stanley Howe
Chairman, Bethel Board of Assessors

Moore will be performing at this weekend's 25th anniversary Trappers' Convention in East Bethel

Next thing the 8-year-old Moore knew, he was performing as Presley at Olson's fourth annual Trappers' Convention. He was a hit.

Moore continued to hone his Elvis skills into his teen years. At 15, he performed with his first backup band, the Dick Haines Blue Grass group.

He also did Elvis at the Telstar talent show, to a warm reception from a generation most of whom paid little attention to the 1950s singer.

Some of his schoolmates told him, "I never liked Elvis, but you do a good job at it."

He later took his act to the Backstage Restaurant in Bethel and to Rumford, performing regularly for several years. He has also taken part in other competitions. In 1995, he won the Oxford Field Day Talent Contest.

Moore dresses in the "'68 come-back look," he said, all in black and leather.

The most often requested songs are "Ain't Nothing But a Hound Dog," and "Blue Suede Shoes."

"I wish I had a dollar for each time I've done them," he said.

Moore has even been known to get requests on his day job, as a heating oil delivery truck driver.

"It's happened four or five times," he said, mostly from women customers. He sang, unaccompanied and in some cases standing in the January snow. "I'd get a good tip," he joked.

Although Presley is his overriding focus, Moore also does impersonations of Buddy Holly, Little Richard, and other entertainers, as well as "animal calls, cars and guns," he said.

He often receives Elvis gifts and mementos from fans. "Ninety-nine percent of the Elvis stuff I've collected, people have given to me," he said, such as posters and ceramics.

Moore also owns a 1972 black Cadillac with Elvis license plates. The entertainer had, and gave away, many of the luxury cars.

Moore thinks he would have liked Elvis the man as much as Elvis the entertainer. "He was down to earth, a very generous man," said Moore.

He said there are a surprising number of fans who still buy into the theory that Presley faked his death and is still alive.

Whether The King is alive or not, it will be Moore performing this weekend again at Neil Olson's — fittingly, at the 25th anniversary of the Trappers' Convention.

port as they start the year.

"We'll continue to build on our successes, and do what's best for kids," he said.

Kids returning to Telstar can expect work to continue on improvements at the school. On successive weekends in late September or early October, new lockers will be installed in the hallways. They will provide more storage space — and will have dimensions more user-friendly to backpacking students.

The new sewer/water system currently under construction is expected to go online in late September, Murphy said. The work is progressing close to the planned schedule.

Bids for the new track are expected to go out in late September. The district had hoped to start the dirt work this fall, but Murphy said officials will have to wait and see how the bid process progresses.

Students arriving at Telstar Tuesday will find a few cosmetic changes. Those familiar with the outside back of the building will discover the large painted word "REBEL" is gone.

Interpreted variously as a verb or the school nickname minus an "s," the word was apparently the unfinished remains of a painting project started in the 1980s. Murphy said he believed the original intent was to paint "Rebel Pride."

The wall has been repainted light green. Murphy said the school's

"T-star" logo may eventually be painted on the wall.

Inside, in the gym, the logo has been newly painted in the center-court circle of the basketball court.

Adult ed ready

Plans are shaping up nicely in the adult education department under new director Jean Waite.

Waite said among new offerings this year will be classes in conversational Italian and French, as well as more courses focusing on health issues. She also plans to offer "colleges of classes" whose topics relate to each other, she said.

The classes will have varying start times. For more information, call 824-2780.

Fires

ing to Town Manager Vern Maxfield. Damage was confined to three-quarters of an acre, Maxfield said.

Rattle River Trail fire

The largest nearby fire was still smoldering Wednesday morning through the duff and boulders in the thin soils of Shelburne Moriah Mountain in the White Mountain National Forest, just south of Shelburne, N.H.

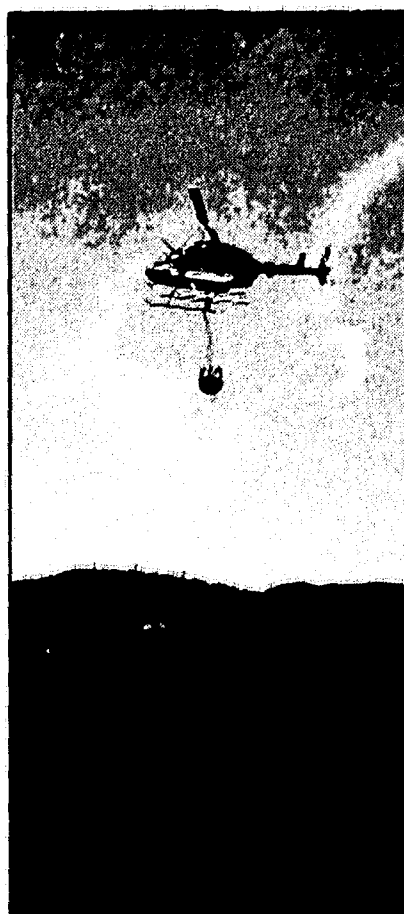

The fire likely started as lightning hit the peaks of the Carter Moriah Range last Friday. After some flaming and activity during the first 36 hours, the fire settled down to about 1.5 acres in size.

The U.S. Forest Service responded quickly, although reaching the remote fire proved difficult and time-consuming as the initial attack crew bushwhacked through dense softwood forest and climbed through boulder fields found at the higher elevations of the White Mountain National Forest. The fire is at about 2,900-foot elevation with no trails nearby.

On Monday firefighters were shuttled as close to the fire as possible, shortening the hike through rough terrain from three hours to 30 minutes, leaving the crew with more time and energy to devote to containing and controlling the fire.

Two days later they continued to clear a line around the burn, which remained at 1.5 acres in size. A helicopter worked for the third and last day Wednesday dropping water on the hottest spots.

The fire was burning in a dense

softwood forest with abundant dead trees and branches in the lower canopy, which easily ignite and flare as the fire moves along the forest floor. Fire has reached into the deep duff layer as well, and is creeping between and under boulders.

Despite the stubborn nature of the fire, Incident Commander Don Muise predicted Tuesday that the fire would be fully contained Wednesday afternoon.

"Last night's rain helped settled it down so we could get in there today and be more effective," he said late on Tuesday. "From here on out we're into the routine and tedious fire control work — logistically just getting to the remote location is a challenge, then spending days dousing hot spots as they flare and keeping the fireline clear of burning material."

Wayne Millen, acting district ranger for the WMNF in Gorham, said: "We'll stay with this fire until we're sure it won't spread beyond the cleared fireline encircling it. We'll extinguish the hot spots that have the potential to flare and ignite material outside the line."

Neighbors in surrounding towns who have been viewing the smoke plume from all directions can expect to see smoke for a while. "This fire could potentially smolder and smoke for weeks to come, until all the fuels are burned out or we get some significant rainfall," said Millen.

Forest Service spokesman Pat Nasta said firefighters have been helped tremendously by neighbors in Shelburne, who have offered food and lodging and provided space for staging operations and parking.

Briefly

Brown home nominated for register

BETHEL—A bungalow-style home on Kilborn Street, once owned by Carl and Ruth Brown, has been nominated for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places. The Brown's granddaughter, Danna Nickerson, and her husband currently live in the house, which was built in 1910 by the Hall family. There have been few modifications to it since then. An attached stable has also been preserved and currently serves as an apartment and history room.

Win wife's weight in cash this year

NEWRY—The winners of this year's North American Wife Carrying Championship will walk away with cash as well as the traditional "wife's" weight in beer, according to Sunday River Ski Resort, where the event takes place. The Red Hook Brewery will award the champions five times the wife's weight in cash. The competition will take place Oct. 12, the same day as the annual Fall Festival at the resort. Competitors navigate a 278-yard obstacle course while the man carries his female partner. The 2001 winners, Nikki Freese and Michael Toohey, placed sixth last month in the world championship contest, held in Finland. Teams wishing to participate at Sunday River may register up to the day of the event, for $35 a team. Call 824-3575 or see www.sundayriver.com/summer2002/wifecarry.html.

Traffic delays on 2 and 26

NEWRY—Work on equipment used to gather traffic data on routes 2 and 26 has been planned for Aug. 20 through the 22, according to the Maine Department of Transportation. At least one lane on the roads will be closed each day while new traffic detecting loops are installed and others repaired.

McLaughlin offers revealing calendar

PARIS—The McLaughlin Foundation is selling an "Altogether in the Garden" 2003 fundraising calendar featuring garden volunteers and staff — who may or may not be nude. The publication is similar to fundraising efforts by other organizations, in which volunteers pose with items placed strategically in front of them. No one with the McLaughlin organization is confirming whether the subjects are in fact nude. The sale of the calendars will help raise money to pay off the foundation's $150,000 mortgage. They are sold in the garden gift shop and on the foundation's Website at www.mclaughlingarden.org. The cost is $15.95, plus $3 for shipping and handling, if ordered online.

Ames closing

OXFORD—The Ames Department Store in Oxford Plaza, along with 326 other Ames stores across the country, will close its doors soon, the company announced last week. Nationwide, 21,500 employees will lose their jobs. The company filed for bankruptcy a year ago. Ames officials said store sales have been lagging and banks have been tightening requirements on credit.

Local clean air/water group organized

WEST PARIS—The Western Maine Citizens for Clean Air and Water is establishing itself as an incorporated group, according to organizer Shirley Damm. With funding from a New England Grassroots Environment Fund grant, the group has hired a consultant to help in investigating possible health problems created by the air and water emissions of industry, Damm said. She said she and other area residents have experienced symptoms including asthma, burning eyes and other health problems for the past five years, and believe it may be attributable to industry emissions. The group plans regular meetings. For more information call 674-3012.

WMNF fire danger high

GORHAM, N.H.—The fire danger in the White Mountain National Forest is now rated high, according to the U.S. Forest Service. Fine fuels such as leaves, branches, twigs, grass, etc. and the duff layer are dry and will burn readily if ignited. Dry conditions combined with gusty winds and many people doing outside activities increases the risk of wildfire. There is no campfire ban in the WMNF at this time, but the forest service is making the following recommendations: Build low intensity fires only in established fire rings or grills. Use stoves rather than campfires in the backcountry. Do not leave campfires unattended. Douse them with water, mix, douse, mix, until cold. Fires left with burning embers can flare up with a gust of wind or creep through the dry organic layer at the soil surface and ignite a wildfire days later. With the dry duff layer, fires will tend to go deeper and can creep along underground for weeks. For New Hampshire fire restrictions call the fire office at (603) 271-2217.

Maine unemployment up

AUGUSTA—The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate for Maine rose to 4.2 percent in July, up from 4.0 percent in June and 4.1 percent a year ago, the Maine Department of Labor has announced. The rate for July of 4.2 percent was well below the national rate of 5.9 percent. Between July 2001 and July 2002, seasonally-adjusted nonfarm wage and salary jobs rose by 1,000 to 611,800. Gains were recorded in local government, retail trade, and services. Partially offsetting these gains, manufacturing jobs declined by 5,000, with the largest losses in electronic and other electric equipment and leather and leather products. Other New England states reporting their seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates for July include Connecticut, 3.8 percent; Vermont, 3.9 percent; Rhode Island, 4.2 percent; New Hampshire, 4.2 percent; and Massachusetts, 4.9 percent.

Mill expanding operations

GORHAM, N.H.—The recently reopened paper mill here is expanding its operations, while the pulp mill in Berlin expects to start buying wood in the fall. The company, Nexfor Fraser, says an additional paper machine was started up recently, allowing the firm to call another 22 employees back to work. The company hopes to recall another 22 workers next month. The mill reopened in June after shutting down last August. In Berlin, the company said it expects to start buying wood this fall to have enough on hand to open the mill at the beginning of next year. "It's our hope to have it running full-time (seven days a week) by the middle of next month," Human Resources Director Greg Cyr said. More than 360 hourly and salaried workers now are employed at the complex. The company has said it eventually wants to employ 700 people at the plants.

Downeaster sets records

PORTLAND—Amtrak's Downeaster set new records for ridership and revenues in July, bringing the service just $280,000 shy of its revenue projections for the first year of operation. This month, the train will surpass its projection of $3.3 million in ticket sales with three and one-half months to spare, according to officials. Revenues have far outpaced expectations because the average ticket price has exceeded expectations. In July, the average ticket was $15.70, compared to the projection of $10 before the service began. That's because the majority of people riding travel the full length between Portland and Boston. Also, first class seating for an extra $8 has been popular.

River conference next month

BETHEL—The Maine Rivers Fifth Annual Fall Conference will take place Sept. 14 and 15 at the Bethel Inn. Conference events will include workshops on Saturday, a picnic by the river Saturday night, and a paddle on the Androscoggin Sunday. On-line information including schedule, brochure, registration and directions can be found at www.mainerivers.org.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Wednesday, Aug. 14

At various times through the morning merchants and residents on upper Main and Broad streets reported acts of vandalism on their properties overnight. Residents of other parts of town also reported mailbox vandalism.

Friday, Aug. 15

At 8:36 p.m. a clerk at a business reported a subject sitting by the road for the past two to three hours. The officer spoke with the man, who said he was trying to get a ride to Vermont. He said he was coming from Washington County from picking blueberries. He was warned about hitchhiking at night and advised that when the business closed he would have to leave the area. He said he would. A later check showed the man had left.

Saturday, Aug. 17

At 1:10 p.m. police investigated a two-vehicle accident at the corner of Route 2 and the Parkway.

Monday, Aug. 19

At 8:18 a.m. police assisted a county deputy with an accident on Route 2 in Gilead.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being arrested or issued a criminal summons, but does not include all reports of other police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

Mongolia

people received was frightening.

"Most of the equipment and instruments are from donor sources, and they (the hospital staff) don't know how to maintain it. The hospital I worked at didn't even have a defibrillator."

"Mongolia is a poor country," Chandler said. "The doctors are predominately women. The average salary (for a doctor) is between $30 and $50 a month. But they're not starving. The diet is mostly mutton and potatoes, and people look after each other."

Mongolia, which is 20 times the size of Maine, has a population of 2 million, twice that of Maine. Most people live in the cities, although there are still many nomads, who travel from place to place.

Vast areas of the country are empty, and the Mongolians fear that empty land might be the lure for a Chinese invasion. During the Cold War, Mongolia aligned with the Soviet Union to because it seemed like the best way to keep out the Chinese. Throughout the cold war, the Soviet influence changed Mongolia.

The hospital where Chandler worked and the apartment where she lived were built by the Russians. Both featured the square, Spartan architecture so common throughout Soviet bloc countries.

"Most people were educated in Russia," Chandler said. "Now, they need to develop their own textbooks."

During the Cold War, Mongolia maintained its independence from the Soviet Union, and was thus able to hold onto its language and most customs. But Chandler saw evidence of the cost the country paid.

"They got the idea that things that are Russian are better."

Since 1990, and the demise of the Soviet Union, Mongolia has had to be more self-reliant, Chandler said.

"Now, they think they have better ideas that they should follow. They haven't begun developing their own ideas. It will be interesting to see what ideas they come up with, what they decide they want the Mongolian role to be."

Mongolians were Buddhists before the Soviet alliance, but religious practice lapsed for many people during the years of Soviet influence.

Chandler found a resurgent interest in Buddhism. "A lot of people will say they're Buddhist, but not really know what it means," she said.

But because of the Buddhist traditions, Chandler said women are, for the most part, treated equally. "They're busy surviving. Whoever can do it, does it. It doesn't matter if they're male or female. Men tend to be the herders (of animals) and drivers (of vehicles). Driving is a profession. If you have a vehicle, you're a taxi driver."

Chandler said the Mongolians were warm and caring. There were no signs of the famed Mongolian hordes that inspired the Ming Dynasty to build the Great Wall of China in the 15th century. Instead, she found a people, both city dwellers and nomads, who struggle to survive.

"Even in the cities, it's rural living," Chandler said. "Everybody knows each other, everybody helps each other. Life is hard, but livable."

Each year, the entire country stops for the National Festival. For days, people gather in the cities to celebrate and participate in the national sports — horse racing, archery, and wrestling.

"They take their animals very seriously there," Chandler said. "At the National Festival, the veterinarian had more equipment than we did."

Chandler also found time to travel throughout Mongolia and to surrounding countries, including China on a few occasions and to Turkey and Greece with friend, Caitlin Bass of Bethel.

Chandler's parents, Jim and Jane, and brother, Jeff, visited her in Mongolia, as well. "I think it was really good for them to come and see what my life was like."

At home in Woodstock, the Chandlers heated their home with a wood stove. Chandler joked, "They said I went to Mongolia to find central heating." (Jim Chandler reports that they have since installed central heating.)

Chandler left for Mongolia two weeks after graduating from Brandeis University with a degree in sociology. Thursday, after two weeks home, she'll leave again to study international social work in graduate school at Columbia University.

Chances are, she said, the future will take her to some other place far from Maine, where there may or may not be central heating.

IMAGES FROM THE EAST—Becky Chandler spent most of her two years in Erdenet, Mongolia working at the city's only Mongolian hospital, helping to improve health care for the 75,000 residents. But she also found plenty of time to travel. Chandler visited the Great Wall of China near Beijing (above, then clockwise), with her family (Jeff, Jane, Becky, and Jim,) in May 2001. Chandler said the Mongolians are proud of the wall, which the Ming Dynasty built during the 15th century to keep Mongolian raiders out. It didn't work. The Mongolian countryside is varied, but much of the country is dry, windswept plain. This home is a "ger," the traditional portable houses of the Mongolians. The more commonly known Russian word, "yurt," is considered derogatory by the Mongolians. In order to enjoy Mongolia's single TV station, this family has a satellite dish powered by a car battery. Camels, of the two-humped variety, are common in Mongolia. "The humps make a natural seat," Chandler said. Animals kept by Mongolians including horses, dogs, pigs, sheep, goats, and yaks, are likely to get better medical care than their owners. Chandler discovered, as have countless other travelers, that curio shops for tourists are the same the world over, which may explain why this shop in Istanbul, Turkey apologized for being open.

These days, imaging is everything.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR EXCEPTIONAL CARE RESPONDS TO THE GROWING NEEDS OF OUR COMMUNITY.

Imaging is a necessary tool in the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of many conditions. Physicians and their patients rely on the benefits of this technology for the best medical care.

Stephens Memorial Hospital is responding to this increasing need with a major commitment to the latest imaging equipment. Our plans call for expanding and modernizing our facilities. Highlights will include a Women's Imaging Center, where women can receive mammography, bone density testing, and ultrasound in a private, comfortable space. In addition to our facilities for nuclear medicine and CAT scanning, we will build an area for a fixed MRI (magnetic resonance imaging) unit. It's a real commitment to our community.

Villa

St. Roman Villa site, which is located in the middle of a plum orchard.

The orchard was part of an extensive tree fruit farm owned by a local farmer, who leased part of the orchard to Dr. Wilkinson for his dig. The farmer loses the harvest of a substantial number of plum trees where the villa is being excavated and the lease fee helps him recoup his loss of unharvested plums and damaged ground.

In addition, the farmer has first crack at the "finds" from the digs. He has the option of keeping the finds, selling them at fair market value, or returning them to Dr. Wilkinson for his studies.

Any find of substantial "heritage value" is turned over to the archaeological authorities. The entire system was explained to me several times, but I failed to really understand it.

On our first visit to the site Monday morning, we were taught troweling, digging and soil disposal techniques; digging up the soil quickly but conservatively to unearth any objects of merit or interest.

Most of the work is done by kneeling on foam kneepads with your butt in the air (someone suggested putting name tags on our behinds not our chests since that's all we saw for hours at a time).

Within 10 minutes I uncovered the most beautiful mosaic tile and triumphantly screamed and held it above my head in total excitement. (Even in matters archeological, I am highly competitive, one of my worst traits).

Immediately my bubble burst by my more experienced digging partner who proclaimed my beautiful blue object a common piece of flint—totally useless and available in copious amounts throughout the area. The discovery of flint would haunt me the whole week, as it comes in beautiful shades of blue, yellow and orange and always resulted in the same reaction on my part—"I found something!"

In the next hour after breaking through the ground surface with a small shovel I hit pay dirt. What first appeared to be a broken piece of Coke bottle was actually the hand-rolled lip of a Roman glass bottle—a great find. After the euphoria wore off, I dug for five more hours without a treasure in sight. But I felt wonderful. I had found a piece of history and it would be recorded and saved for posterity.

The days progressed; a talk in the morning served with English tea, digging for the main part of the day and a summary lecture at headquarters around 4:30 p.m., again with tea and delicious cookies.

The third morning of the dig broke with heavy rains, ending a five-day heat wave. We had a longer-than-usual talk, this time on field surveying, as we waited for the sun to come out in hopes of drying out the "pits" before starting to dig. (Walking in the pits with wet soil can do serious harm to the site, so we also took the precaution of laying down our kneepads to stand on).

Imagine our surprise when we piled out of the bus around noon and found three beefy, tattooed, somewhat menacing men gripping metal detectors in their hands. These guys represent the slightly seamy side of archeology. There is a small army of entrepreneurs, armed with metal detectors, who can enter legitimate archeological sites with the permission of the landowner to search for treasure.

By law, these "pirates" must turn over one-half of their plunder to the on-site archeologist who in turn gives it over to the landowner, but by the looks of these guys I suspected they didn't adhere to the rules.

There were a few tense words between Dr. Wilkinson and the "tattooed men," as we called them, and they left the premises. They could return to the site legally after 4 p.m. when the site was officially closed, but on that day they had already violated the rules.

As we entered the orchard we found many holes in the huge piles of soil lying next to the actual pit. The metal detectors had found something and the men had dug hastily in the dirt to retrieve their discoveries, leaving a mess behind them. (Later in the day, we left American coins in the dirt piles just to really annoy those guys.)

Hearing about these latter day plunderers left a bad taste in everyone's mouth. Legitimate archeologists have enough to contend with by adhering to numerous rules and regulations set by British authorities, and it was disconcerting to have to deal with these shady characters, too.

Dr. Wilkinson made two more major presentations during the week. The first, surveying, was the most difficult for me. I have a dread of anything mathematical and as soon as the tape measures, rulers, and charts came out, I completely froze up, turning into the 14-year-old girl who failed miserably at algebra and who has never fully recovered from receiving an "F" in the ninth grade.

For 50 minutes my eyes completely focused on Dr. Wilkinson, nodding my head in understanding as his eyes swept across my face. In reality I was zoned out, praying for the end of the lecture (this time it felt like a lecture).

Basically, I can tell you that surveying is a way of positioning every "find" and detailing where the work was done for the future. A site may be worked on for seven to eight months a year, but it is often buried again with the onset of winter. An archeologist must pinpoint everything from a vertical, horizontal and depth perspective. When one is looking at notes on a cold winter's evening, sitting in a comfy armchair sipping tea, the calculations and information must be exact. In other words you can't go home again—your records become your memory.

That's the purpose of surveying, and despite my intellectual interest in it I left the working realities to math and engineering freaks, of which there was only one out of 27 adults. He rejoiced in yelling out numbers, yanking on tape measures and using a ruler and everybody was damn glad that he did.

At the end of the day, all our "finds" (including two Roman coins, painted plaster from the bathhouse and a woman's hairpin made from bone) were recorded and catalogued by type and location.

Charts are also drawn daily to indicate the number of pieces found in a particular spot that would indicate the density of the find. Several of the same pieces in the same area could mean a whole new might have existed there at one time.

We also learned a second form of surveying, called "field surveying" or going on a "field walk." This involved walking across a freshly plowed field, looking for pottery shards, pieces of tile and stone or plaster building materials. A density of these types of materials could indicate a potential villa site. Workers do line-and-grid walking, dividing the field in linear lines about 25 meters apart. If items are found in great density, the walkers will begin to use 10-meter grids. All finds of every period are collected and noted on a numbered and lettered grid system for future reference.

If a field is plowed once a year 18 inches of soil is disturbed. Add to that about six inches of lost soil from wind and rain with a resulting disturbance of 24 inches. Animals also burrow and dig in the fields shifting materials to different locations. Older tractors would stop when hitting larger rocks but newer tractors plough deeply, with the potential of destroying sections of a building. Very large pieces are often dragged out to the end of the field, totally distorting building locations. Even the lowly worm has an impact on finding archeological items. Worms create tunnels and enough of them weaken the soil causing pieces of tile, stone and pottery to fall deeper into the ground.

Field surveying is of particular importance for archeologists in the UK right now because there is a revolution going on in the growing fields of Kent and elsewhere.

Traditional tree fruit farms (cherries, plums, apples, and pears) are being destroyed at an alarming rate. It costs less to import fruit to England than to grow it locally and farmers are ripping out their hundreds-of-years-old orchards, plowing them under and planting rape-seed, a highly lucrative crop that is used to make cooking oil.

Unfortunately, many undiscovered Roman villas are under those orchards and there is a race to uncover and preserve as many villas as possible before they are lost forever.

The week wasn't all work. My fellow amateur archeologists were a humorous and witty bunch, coming from all walks of life including insurance salesmen, retirees, cops, a printer and a special-effects producer from London.

At night I hit the famous English pubs with friends allowing myself two pints of Scrumpy Jack each evening (a highly potent hard cider). I am happy to report I did nothing to embarrass the United States. I do remember spending an incredible amount of time convincing people that not everyone in America voted for George Bush, and yes, there does exist a diversity of opinions—political, cultural, and religious—among our citizens. Thanks to the one-sidedness of both American and British media very little seems to be known about us other than the antics of our politicians past and present and our awful television programming.

By the end of the week we had uncovered the curved stone outline of the bathhouse. The feel of 2000-year-old tiles and stones gives you a shiver up your back and a vast feeling of connectedness. People just like me bathed here millenniums ago, enjoying the rush of hot and cold water on their skin after a long and sweaty day working in the fields or creating pottery.

Archeology is living history—kneeling in the pit you can feel it, taste it and see it with your senses. Dr. Wilkinson said, "history is what survives. Choices are made throughout history that determines what we know now." With the destruction of potential archeological finds through modern technology, development and just plain carelessness, we are destroying our history. I for one will be back next year in the UK in the hopes that I can dig a little more, save a little bit and have another pint of Scrumpy Jack.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

Did you know that it is possible to lead a cow upstairs, but not downstairs? That's one of those bits of useless information I have accumulated over the years. Useless, of course, unless I'm ever in a situation where I feel compelled to lead a cow upstairs. The odds are so against it that I really am not very concerned about how I would ever get it downstairs again.

The fact of the matter is, when it comes to useless information...I'm full of it. For example, I know that butterflies taste with their feet. That really baffles me. My feet, have in fact, led me to a great restaurant where the food tasted wonderful, but I tasted it with the taste buds located on my tongue, not my feet.

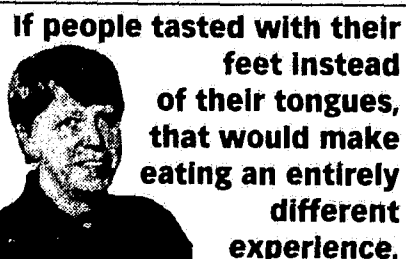

If people tasted with their feet instead of their tongues that would make eating an entirely different experience. Of course, it would also make walking an entirely different experience too and I don't even want to think about some of the things that I have walked on in my life.

And speaking of tongues, did you know that it is physically impossible to lick your elbow? It really is. And did you know that crocodiles cannot stick their tongues out at all, even if they wanted to try to lick their elbows assuming that they even have them.

Another interesting tidbit is the fact that women blink nearly twice as much as men. I don't think that is really any kind of scientific mystery if you consider that strange or weird things can cause us to blink. Then if you consider that women are surrounded by men...well, I rest my case. The only mystery here is why women's eyes are not flutter all the time.

That reminds me of another interesting but useless fact that I know. Our eyes are always the same size from birth, but our noses and ears never stop growing. I know, it's hard to believe, but it's true. I used to believe that the prominence of the nose and ears on some older people was because their faces shrunk with age, but now I know that isn't the case. I pity the poor person that starts life with an oversized nose or set of ears.

At least human beings are not like ostriches whose eyes are actually bigger than their brains. I certainly know some people that this would seem to apply to and I have definitely had occasions when it seemed that my eyes were bigger than my belly, but these things are only illusions. Our brains are actually quite large.

That's not to say that we use all the brain capacity that we do have. It makes one wonder how much gray matter is used by the approximately 100 people that choke to death each year on a ballpoint pen. I mean no disrespect to anyone who has lost a loved one to death by Bic, but I do not recall a time in my life when I have felt the urge to suck so hard on a ballpoint pen that I was at risk of choking on one. I guess that provides confirmation to all the parents and teachers who warn children not to put pens and pencils in their mouths.

I don't think that a lot of people spend much time worrying that their demise will come from a Papermate. Spiders...well that's another story. The word is, that on average, people fear spiders more than they do death. I don't think that's too surprising. When our time comes there usually isn't anything we can do about it, but a great big daddy long legs crawling on us is bound to set us on edge and searching for the nearest newspaper or book to flatten the wayward arachnid.

Maybe what we should fear is death by pizza. I recently read that collectively Americans consume an average of 18 acres of pizza every day. That's another one of those useless facts I have, however, it does make me wonder how many acres of pizza I have personally consumed. However much I have eaten, I have certainly put on enough weight that when I dress all in green I could easily pass for prime acreage so I guess there is some connection to pizza and land mass.

At least I can still jump even if it isn't very high, so that means I won't be mistaken for an elephant because elephants are the only animal that can't jump.

A few other useless animal facts I know include such thought provoking information as a duck's quack doesn't echo and no one knows why and if you say you do know you're probably a quack. All polar bears are left-handed and snails, though not an animal I thought this was interesting enough to pass it on, can sleep for three years.

If you're wowed by this kind of trivia here's some more that's bound to delight you. Only one person in two billion will live to be 116 or older. No word in the English language rhymes with "Month." The electric chair was invented by a dentist (I would have guessed that). Thirty-five percent of the people who use personal ads for dating are already married (I could have guessed that too). TYPEWRITER is the longest word that can be made using the letters only on one row of the keyboard.

Impressed? Want more? If Barbie was life-sized, here measurements would be 39-23-33 and she would stand seven feet and two inches tall. Move over Xena, here comes Barbie, Warrior Princess.

"Go," is the shortest complete sentence in the English language. I told that to my husband and he said "No?" I said "Yo!"

And now you know a lot more useless information than you did. And the way I see it, useless or not, many of you who read this column will try to lick your elbow.

Linda Petrie and Ann Pouleau recently retired from SAD43. They, along with Donna Morse of Andover, enjoyed a celebration dinner hosted by Carol Neilson at her home on Chapman Street.

Bronson Douglass, son of Gina and Brian Douglass, North Road, is recuperating at home after having knee surgery, on Aug. 10, at Lakes Region General Hospital in Laconia, N.H. He was injured on Aug. 9 while wake boarding on Lake Winnisquam, Laconia, in preparation for competition the next day.

Braden Douglass is attending Guilford College in Greensboro, N.C.

Stanley Howe recently hosted a cookout supper for the family of the late Dr. Larry Kimball, formerly of Bethel. His wife, Edie Ellen Kimball, their three children and spouses and the eight grandchildren spent the day touring the area where Larry grew up. Barbara and Rudi Honkala and Peter Haines were also guests.

Karl and Suzanne Barth of Silverthorn, Colo.; Bruce, Dora and Henry Barth from Basalt, Colo.; Marcy, Alina and Tess of Wheaton, Ill.; were recent guests at the home of Al and Lee Barth.

The Bethel Mundt-Allen Legion and Auxiliary sponsored a family gathering at Stony Brook Campground in Hanover.

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club enjoyed a picnic at Stony Brook Campground last Wednesday.

Guests of Mary and Left Keniston this week are Douglas and Sandra Rice of Guilford, Conn., Liona and Jeff Meaux of Duluth, Minn., and Marietta, Ga.

Brendon and Jean Bass have returned from their trip to the West Coast.

The Mahoosuc Music Makers held their final concert at the gazebo on the common on Monday evening.

On Aug. 16, with 8 1/2 tables playing at Oxford Hills Duplicate Bridge, the north-south winners were: first Paul Barber and Larry Holmes; second, Rosemarie Goodwin and Leslie Lord; third, Adele Bendes and Lilyan Waxman-Levine; fourth, Eleanor Griffin and Ralph Farris. The east-west winners were: first, Eric and Marilyn Sahlberg; second, Bill Bowman and Winston Rosendahl; third, Rolande Poulin and Joann Morris; fourth, Nicholas Karamessinis and Don Johnson.

Sorry to miss last week's column, but we were on vacation. It is my first real vacation in many years. What follows is a partial column about it. I seemed to have lost most of my notes, but I will go from memory.

David and I ventured out last Monday morning to head down east. We headed first toward Bangor, dining at Mama Baldacci's. After eating, we hit the airline route (Route 9), and were really on our way. We went through all manner of small towns and all of a sudden, the sign said, pavement ends. It did, immediately. We next went through at least ten miles of dirt road while Route 9 was under construction. Fortunately, it was after 6 at night and there was little construction going on. Still, we had to go slow and had to stop a few times. After that, it was clear sailing, all the way to Machias. We stopped there and it was too late to go to the campground — it was dark and we had an unfamiliar tent — so we looked for a place to stay. There was no room at the first two places we inquired about, and we were directed to a motel/inn on Campobello Island. Once we understood the monetary conversion, we were set for the night. We were told about a breakfast place with super good/big cinnamon buns. So, of course, that was where we headed Tuesday morning. They were good.

After that we made our way back toward the campground. It was Cobscook Bay Campground in Edmunds. Arriving there, we got one of the last campsites and went to set up our tent. Being a dumper, we did not know how good it would be. As insurance, I had borrowed my boss's $700 tent. All went well, except there were no tent stakes. Those we borrowed from the fancy tent. This tent was great. It did not have a rain flap, but luckily we had no rain. That is our next purchase. In any case, it was a two-room, yep that's right, two-room tent. We each had our own room. Dave's to be neat because he's anal, and mine to be messy. Dave turned out to be good at the camp stove and we had a great breakfast and a good dinner on it. We also had more than one meal out.

Spotty relief from the recent dry and hot weather conditions last week came in the form of scattered thunderstorms. The storms brought some rain, but not enough to lower the area's high fire danger. In fact, lightning is thought to have started a number of fires. Here, Nature puts on a show in the Friday night sky over Andover.

Huckleberry Corner is open. The new gift shop opened for business on Aug. 10 and is located at the corner of Route 2 and the Ellis River Road in Rumford Point. Featured are gifts, collectibles, baskets, primitives and souvenirs. Special gift baskets can be made by request and Maine souvenirs are available. Owner Gloria Morton says the shop has been a long-time plan of hers and since opening they have been busy. Kathy Walker and Debbie McKenna assist her. They are ready with gift suggestions and gift basket assembly. Watch for their Grand Opening on Aug. 31. There will be drawings and free gifts. Huckleberry Corner is open weekdays, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on weekends, 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Howard Pond Camper's Association has announced plans for their annual dinner and meeting. Scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 24, at 6 p.m., at the Rumford Point Church, participants are asked to bring a main dish, salad and a dessert to share. Campers and their guests are welcome to attend.

For many years, Louise Worcester has placed surplus garden products in front of her house by the Howard Pond Road on a red bench with a "free" sign. Usually by the end of the day, those who pass by take everything. One day last week the zucchini were all taken and so was the bench. Louise would like to get the bench back because her husband made it for her and it has sentimental value. Anyone with information about a woman driving an older pickup truck on Thursday, Aug. 15, along the Howard Pond Road should contact Louise or Dave.

Matt and Paula Howe have been vacationing at Howard Pond. They went home last Friday.

Mickey Revay from Connecticut has also been at Howard Pond, staying in a cottage on South Shore Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith vacationed at the Smith Cottage on South Shore Road. Peter's dad, Howard (Pete) Smith, remains at the family cottage.

A police chase that began in Rumford ended in Hanover on Monday when a tractor-trailer truck was stopped on Route 2 about one-quarter mile west of Hanover Village. The female driver and male passenger were handcuffed and taken away. A State Police truck unit, U.S. Border Patrol and Rumford Police were involved in the chase and takeover.

The Hanover Boat Ramp at the Androscoggin River has been a busy place this summer. People are putting in, taking out and fishing at the site daily. The Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife built the boat ramp.

Brad and Mike Worcester met their brother, Daren, in Portland, and traveled to Boston for a Red Sox game at Fenway Park.

The Hanover Area Neighborhood Watch met Monday for the monthly meeting with Trooper Eric Paquette. There were seven in attendance. Some of the subjects discussed were suspicious packages, speeding chip trucks, citizen's arrest (for felonies only), use of suggestion boxes to pass crime tips to police and concealed weapons permits. In Hanover, the Maine State Police issues concealed weapons permits and the number to call is available at the Hanover Town Office.

Samuel T. Brown II died unexpectedly while walking in the woods near his home on Wednesday, Aug. 14. Friends from throughout the area have prayed for peace.

Mason Township

by Richard Grover
Mona acted as babysitter for her great-grandson, Boston, a couple days last week.

We were impressed and surprised by that two-year-old's appetite for fresh fruit and vegetables. He loves to have us peel and slice apples, which he promptly stuffs into his mouth until he can barely breathe. One day I took him to the garden to help pick corn for lunch. I brought a small bucket into which I put the five ears of husked corn. Boston wanted to carry the bucket back to the house, but he decided it was too heavy after just a short distance. I offered to carry the bucket, which he agreed to, but he wanted to carry one of the ears of corn. By the time we got to the house, I noticed Boston was chewing on the ear of raw corn. Inside, Boston gave Mona ("Nana") the cob, now totally bare of kernels. He ate another cooked ear when we had our lunch. That afternoon, I picked fresh peas, which I was shelling for our supper. Of course, Boston wanted to help. In the process, he grabbed handfuls of shelled peas and ate them raw almost as fast as I could shell them. This in no way affected his appetite for cooked peas and corn with his evening meal.

On Friday afternoon, I decided to take Snuffy on a short hike while Mona took sister Verna for a doctor's appointment. Snuffy and I headed for the Blueberry Ridge trail, just off Route 113 west of Evans Notch. About a mile and a half from the trailhead, the trail breaks out onto some ledges on the rather steep side of Blueberry Ridge (heading toward Speckled Mountain). I was surprised by the extremely dry conditions there. The blueberry bushes were all brown, as were many of the small moosewood bushes and small maple trees. I could also see a lot of brown leaves on many of the other, rather stunted deciduous trees on the ridge. This is in stark contrast with the Rumford Whitecap Mountain, which is producing a bumper crop of blueberries this year. Apparently, our scattered thundershowers this summer have blessed Whitecap, while avoiding the Blueberry Ridge area altogether.

The dry conditions around home have left Hutchinson Brook and Pleasant River at near record low levels. The water is so low in Hutchinson Brook that a six-inch trout can't swim between pools; the water barely trickles between rocks in the gravel brook bed. The ol' swimmin' hole at "The Falls" is also much smaller than normal. We haven't had a good spring freshet in years to gouge out the gravel and flush the leaves and sticks out of the pool. I also blame the low water level for an infestation of leeches (blood suckers) in the swimmin' hole. I don't remember that ever happening when I was growing up here. When my grandkids were here, we decided to swim in Wild River because of the leeches here. Pray for rain.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer
The East Bethel Church will have its last service on Aug. 25 at 2 p.m., with Ben Conant doing the service. Neil Olson's Trappers' Weekend is Aug. 23-25. I believe Brandon "Elvis" Moore will entertain everyone on Aug. 24.

Dale and Nancy Kimball, Amy Scribner and Dot Bartlett went on the Bethel Senior Citizens Club mystery trip on Aug. 7.

Roger and Louise Twitchell and Dana and Millie Jackson attended the Bethel Senior Citizens Club picnic and meeting at Stony Brook Campground in Hanover on Aug. 14.

Len and Diane Parker were in Toronto, Canada, from Aug. 5 to 9. They attended his father's funeral and did some shopping for the grandchildren.

Savannah Bachelder celebrated her second birthday on Aug. 17 with Diane and Len Parker.

Florence Hastings returned home on Aug. 16 from spending time with Dave and Ann Morton at Tricky Pond and also some time with Alan and Mary Alice Bancroft at Sebago Lake.

Howard and Alice Fales of West Redding, Conn., visited with Peter Haines, George Haines and Nancy Mercer on Aug. 18. Alice finally made the trip onto the interval.

Andre and Flossie Bernier joined a group of Jeepers at Geoff Gaudreau's for a Jeep ride and a pig roast on Aug. 17.

Alder River Grange had a good turnout for the Yard Sale and Chicken B-B-Q Supper on Aug. 17, even with all the heat.

All last week was really a hot one in more ways than one. I am glad that Mr. Jodrey thought the leak was a "nothing."

Arlene Harrington had a good sized group at the Harrington/Remington Reunion: Charmaine R. Cote of Farmington, N.H.; Edward and June Remington of Livermore; Owen and Virginia Morton of Andover; Jim and Stacie Coolidge of Andover; Jannine DeVona and Paul Smith of Massachusetts; Jim and Brenda; Roger McGuire of Andover; Katie Merrill of Andover; Rick Merrill of Andover; Dori and Carl Hallman of Durham; Jennifer Merrill and Taylor Merrill of Andover; Robert and Barbara Remington of York; Wayne and Wilma Bean; Gloria Crockett; Robert and Anita Remington; Brant, Jena, Kailene and Avery Remington; Dawson and Judy Smith of Surry; Esther Fuller of Greenwood; Neil Olson and Howard. All had a good time.

Charmaine Cote will stay for a few days, Aug. 17-20, before returning to Farmington, N.H. Hope the air gets drier. Have a good week. God Bless America.

North Newry

by Gil Seely
Thank you so much, Betsy and Dick, for the garden veggies. I sure enjoyed eating them.

David Wight and Ann Sacy of Old Town were married at the Newry Community Church on July 25. David's parents, Willard and Sylvia Wight, were their attendants. Pastor Rodney Hanscom performed the ceremony. The couple works for the city of Old Town.

Also, Willard and Sylvia attended the wedding of their grandson, Jason Wight and Erin Babcock in Vergennes, Vt., on July 27. Jason is the son of Marleen and Stephen Wight of Old Town. Other members who attended were Gretchen and Melissa Straus of Waterford and Ann and Dave Wight of Old Town.

Call to worship at the Newry Community Church was held Sunday morning, Aug. 11 at 9 a.m., with Pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. Prelude by Jay Hanscom. The message of the day was "Keep Afloat" from St. Matthew 14:30. "When he saw the wind boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me." A prayer followed, hymn, benediction and postlude. Amen.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte

Drought conditions have prevailed for about two or three weeks. Sunday evening a spectacular thunderstorm occurred. The sky over the lake was illuminated by multiple strikes of lightning silhouetting the mountains. There wasn't a huge amount of rain but there was enough to wet down the forest and reduce the "fire danger." Monday morning we awoke to find a freshly washed world with much cooler temperatures.

The Ladies Aid wish to thank Larry Lavallee for the many jobs performed on the building. In July, he installed a new stainless steel sink. Last week, he painted a wall, donating all the materials used. Thanks, Larry. You deserve this week's "Atta Boy" award.

The Wildlife Refuge held a "Take your child fishing day" on Saturday. Many families participated involving their kids in the activity. Several boats offered trips up the lake. Roger Lavallee took quite a few families out on his pontoon boat. They all caught fish of various sizes. Two boys landed "big" ones, to their delight. When asked if they were going to have them for dinner, they said no they were going to have them mounted.

James Yarnell was memorialized and honored in Joy's garden Saturday. The flowers were beautiful and the weather, though very warm, was clear and bright. Jim would have treasured the gathering of his friends and family in a spot that was dear to his heart.

The Ellingwood Family Homecoming was held at Margaret Mitchell's on Back Street. It was well attended by relatives from several states.

Beth Hill and Robert Hand were married in the All Souls Chapel at the Poland Springs Resort Saturday. Several people from Upton attended the ceremony. Beth "jitterbugged" with her 84-year-old Grandpa Curtis at the reception. They received a standing ovation.

The gardens must be flourishing because every day we receive "care packages" from local gardeners. Dick Angevine, Buster Williamson, Bob Folsom and the Harris family are keeping us "well nourished" with healthy veggies. Richard, who has "Vertiphobia," is overwhelmed with happiness with all those green vegetables. We fear we may have a case of broccoli poisoning ahead.

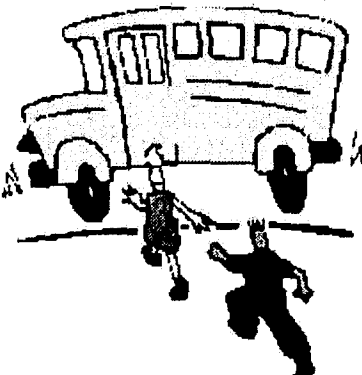

The Errol Quilt Show was held over the weekend. It was sponsored by the "Shady Lady Quilters" of Colebrook and Errol. Prize-winning quilts from "Keepsake Quilts," as well as wonderful local quilts were on display. The show was very well done by some dedicated quilters.

Bob Dapolito is doing a fine job restoring the Douglas Homestead. A new roof and fresh paint are the most recent additions.

The Herb Thomas Camp on Mill Road is occupied by Herb's relatives this week. They are very busy doing chores and enjoying fishing and boating. It's good to see the old family place come back to life again. We hoped that Herb, who lives in California, would be among the campers, but he was unable to make it.

Earl Largesse is happy to have his '46 Ford, (iridescent purple) back on the drag strip. Last week, his numbers were fast, fast and faster. "Barney" is the name of the colorful dragster. His grandson, Mark, is top in points in Junior Dragster. The family recently returned from a vacation in the Meredith, N.H., area. Lucille had a grand time at "Keepsake Quilters." She calls it "Quilters Heaven."

The birds have been scarce during the drought. They must be clustered in the thickets around the lake since there is a lot of peeping and chirping in that area. An Indigo Bunting has been at the feeder early every morning. He's quite a vocalist and once in awhile belts out a lovely aria. Upton has always been frequented by this beautiful blue bird. Joy Yarnell had a pair set up residence in her garden last year. The Indigo Bunting builds her nest of dried grass, stems, and dead leaves shaped like a small cup. She hides it in ferns, weeds, and shrubs. Twice a year she lays three or four bluish eggs. Although the male may feed the young, he takes no part in the incubation of the eggs. That is definitely mom's job. These birds dine on insects, weed seeds and on occasion the local feeder offerings. The summer months bring out the brilliant blue feathers in the male. The female is drab brown. In winter the male mimics her color with hints of blue feathers on the wing and tail. The "Bird of the Week" is the Indigo Bunting.

Watch for this "dandy" in the garden or your feeder.

Question of the week — What happened to the "Boston Post Cane" in Upton?

The Ladies Aid Craft and Bake Sale will be held Saturday, Aug. 31, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Upton Town Office will be opened from the 6th to the 18th of September for the collection of taxes only — no registration, no licenses, no excise taxes.

The Tri-Town Rescue Yard Sale on Aug. 10 and 11 was held at the Union Church in South Woodstock. Annella and Evelyn were chairmen, Peggy and Rena also assisted and Mary Lovejoy helped on Saturday. Many thanks to all who gave articles for the sale and for people who came to buy on such a warm, humid day — $702.80 was the total money turned over to the ambulance fund. Joyce and Joan helped in setting up and cleaning up after. Also, thanks for the raspberries given by Mary on Saturday.

Paul Ryan of Santa Monica, Calif. and Kathy Ryan, Burlington, Vt. were recent guests of Evelyn T. Bean and visited their uncle Michael at the Maine Veterans' Home.

People should remember that there is a $500 fine for tacking or putting signs (yard sale, etc.) on any CMP or telephone poles.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday School and Adult Bible Fellowship at 9:15 a.m., morning worship at 10:30 a.m., choir practice at 5 p.m. and evening service at 6 p.m. Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m. are Patch the Pirate Club, prayer meeting and Bible study. Friday evening from 6 to 8 p.m. is Family Fun Night. Come play games, volleyball, ping-pong, board games, shoot baskets, etc. Everyone is welcome.

On Sunday I was pleasantly surprised at a birthday brunch at the Kit-N-Kaboodle by my family. A delicious buffet ending in cake and ice cream was held. Attending were Beatrice Farnum, Ken Hoyt, Beth, Steve and Marybeth Hoover, JoAnn, David, Shawn and Ray Crockett and Jessica, James, Joseph and Maggie Hoyt, Lauretta Sanborn and Robert Hoyt, Leatrice and John Chase, Albert and Robert Stevens, Richard, Tressa, Mike and Hunter Chase, Andrew, Rhonda and Liza Chase, Harriett and Lawrence Estes. A good time was had.

Judith Grover Tent 17 will meet on Aug. 26 at the Grange Hall. Refreshments were by Michelle Cary and Helvi Cary.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens will meet on Thursday, Sept. 5, for a potluck dinner and a silent auction. Please bring a hot dish, salad or dessert and your own place setting and also something for the silent auction.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Francis Brooks.

Curator Larry Billings has given the Historical Society a copy of "Recollection of Life on the Maine Farm in the 1930s" by Wallace Bixby. He put some things in storage to relieve congestion for the History Day Open House. Attendance was good this summer and visitors' comments were enthusiastic. Significant income was also realized. The History Day Open House had a limited attendance. Annella Burnham supplied fresh flowers and Curator Larry brought artificial flowers. Larry also donated a note from President and Mrs. Bush. Thanks to Elsie Bonney, Olive Risko, Mary Billings, Elaine Roberts, Ruth Cox and Curator Larry Billings for watching the museum. The Bonneys supplied a grill for the picnic and the society brought hamburgers and hot dogs. A nominating committee was elected. Curator Billings attended Sudbury Canada Days. The September meeting of the society will feature a video of Sturbridge Village supplied by Paul Billings. The museum will close soon. Thanks to all who have watched it. God bless the visitors who were so appreciative.

The society has outstanding collections. Its exhibits are well catalogued and many have labels. The two floors of the museum are full with plenty to see.

South Woodstock

Phelps and Joan Poland with 14 family members went to Story Land recently.

It included four generations, with ages ranging from one to 72. They all spent the day on rides and playing games and had a wonderful time.

Sarah Hart was tendered a bridal shower Sunday. Many guests attended and Sarah received many useful and nice gifts. The shower was given by Jessie Hart, Jenny Record, Artemus Record and Kellie Record. It was held at her mom's home in South Paris.

The Tri-Town ambulance had a good turnout at the sale held at the Union Church in South Woodstock. It was a success.

Doug Wing received honors from Farmington College, where he graduated in May. He is now going to college in New Hampshire to continue his education. Doug is our grandson.

I wish I could harness some of this heat we've been having for next winter.

Greenwood City

by Rena Curtis
Brad and Ann Payne went up to Moosehead Lake last week. They stayed at Rockwood and enjoyed day trips. They went down to Greenville, another day to North-east Carre, then they went up the Golden Road.

One day this week we had a sick moose at Greenwood City over by the Patch Mountain Road. They had to call Norman Lewis, the Game Warden, to come and take care of it. That same day, there was a bull moose that came down the big field across the road from Faye and Leonas Holt's place.

Betty Curtis had her granddaughter, Cassandra Smith, visit and spend the night with her. Karen and Rick Smith from Oxford called on Betty one day.

One day Catherine Okala and Brenda Mason called on me.

They have a sign painted on an old plow showing where the town garage is. They are putting in the footing for the new sand shed, which will make it better.

way shopping and went over to South Paris to see Colista Morgan. We took her the Coat of Arms of the Curtis family and also a nice quilt. My daughter-in-law made it for her. It is the schoolhouse pattern. She was very happy with them. Also she really enjoyed all the birthday cards she received, which were a lot from everywhere, including Massachusetts, Kentucky, California, Texas and Maine of course.

I had a lot of company on Sunday: Lillian and Glenn Straight of Pownal, Colista and Stephen Cogswell of Freeport, Tricha, Keith and Kevin Curtis of Norway, Laurel Curtis of Farmington and of course Albert Curtis from town. Laurel brought over yeast bread she had made for me. I sure enjoyed it and also had some for the rest.

That's it for this week. Have a happy, safe week.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson
Hi readers,
Well, are you all keeping your cool? We are here with the air conditioners and ceiling fans on full force. I dread the next electric bill. Oh well, so be it.

Anyway, Friday night, Aug. 9, Albert Sr., Albert Jr., Carole and Eric, Dale, Kitty and Molly Nelson, Cheryl, Joshua and Lindsey Barnard, Jennifer Elliott and Frances Grant were all here for steak, corn on the cob, potato salad and a birthday ice cream cake to help celebrate my birthday.

Then, on Monday, there was another birthday party for me at the Pizza Hut at Oxford by JoAnn Hartford, Frances Grant, Albert and Loretta Andrews. My goodness, it's like the batteries ad, which says they go on and on, because later Thelma Dadmun and Geneva Tripp brought me gifts, also. Aren't I lucky to have such good family relations and neighbors and friends. Thanks to all.

Albert has been busy delivering firewood to people in the area.

Katie is doing okay since she came home from the animal hospital. She goes back next week for a check-up.

Fox Bros. is remodeling the former Knox camp at West Stoneham.

Don't forget the annual Turkey Supper at the Stoneham Church from 5 to 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 22. If you miss that one, a public supper is at North Waterford Church on Aug. 27 (a regular one) from 5 to 6:30 p.m. and Sept. 5 again at Stoneham Church, same time, and Oct. 10 is the harvest supper with corned beef and veggies. All good and good for you.

Well, last night I attended the meeting at the Fryeburg Fairgrounds to support Rob Cameron, who is running for State Senate District 24. Bud Burns conducted the meeting until Rob could get there from another meeting he had to attend.

Also last night, author Stephen King appeared at the North Lovell Grange Hall and Library, which I missed going to. I will find more about that later from those who did attend.

Oh yes, think of me tomorrow. Albert brought home a bushel of nice ripe tomatoes to can (we love the home-canned ones) and a half-bushel of apples. I guess that's a hint for an apple pie. See you next week.

Albany

by Dana & Sheila Dyke
Greetings and hello from Albany Township. We hope that everyone had a good weekend. Nice to see some rain, finally. Seemed like it's either drought or monsoon this year.

Last Sunday was fellowship after services, and we all enjoyed some nice treats and conversation. Then the Youth Choir went over to see Connie Jewell, who is ill with cancer. The choir sang six songs to Connie, who in turn treated us to some refreshing liquid, which was nice, as it was very hot on Sunday. Later that day, we were all entertained by Diane Muise, who sang beautifully and shared some wonderful messages of love, hope and God with those in attendance. Of course, afterward, we all enjoyed ever more sweets. We want to thank Pam and Carlton Rugg for having Diane come and sing for us. We hope we can have her back again sometime.

Bible Study will be held on Thursday at Fernand and Holle Corriveau's home, starting at 6:30 p.m. Last week, we moved the study to the vestry at the church because it was so hot. The vestry stays nice and cool, even when it's sweltering outside. The Youth Choir will continue to meet on Wednesdays at 6 p.m. at the church. If anyone needs a ride, etc., give us a call and we'll see what we can do to get your wonderful voices to rehearsals. Services begin on Sunday with Sunday School at 9 a.m., and services at 9:30.

The next church supper will be on the 29th starting at 5:30 p.m. There will be one more (put on by the Youth Group) on Sept. 12 (we believe).

Best wishes for a wonderful week. God bless and keep.

West Paris

by Miriam Inman
John Young, Brian and Timmy returned home to Stamford, Conn., after spending the past week here with his mother, Phyllis Young.

Kim Inman, in the company of her mother, Alta Waterhouse, and sister, Linda Lawton, attended the Littlehale Reunion on Sunday at the home of Earl and Amy Andrews in Oxford.

Ginny and Bill Aridas spent a few days with his daughter and grandson in Smithtown, N.Y.

The Goodwill Fellowship meeting will be on Monday evening at the home of Nancy Willard on Lake Christopher for a potluck supper.

The West Paris Downhill Derby race winners in the seven to 11 class were Kaylee Millett, first; Haleigh Bonney, second; Samantha Hill, third.

Reunions

MCALISTER/MCALLISTER

The McAlister/McAllister family held a reunion Sunday, Aug. 11, at the North Waterford Fairgrounds.

Family members came from Germany, California, Florida, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and 16 towns in Maine.

Registration started at 9 a.m. President Justin McAllister greeted the group, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance and a few moments of silence in memory of family members who had passed away since the last meeting.

The business meeting started at 11:30 a.m. It was decided to have the next reunion in the Lovell area in 2004.

New officers were elected as follows: president, Justin McAllister; vice president, Donald Farr; secretary, Sheila Varney; treasurer, Guy McAlister Jr.; trustees, Barbara Farr, Franklin McAllister and Joyce Bridge. We voted to make Fr. Don McAllister an honorary trustee.

The members acknowledged the 50th wedding anniversary of Ed and Lois Neimi and the 47th wedding anniversary of Glen and Nona Farrington and the birthdays of Guy McAlister Jr. and Joan Grover. Prizes were given at the time of the meeting in the following categories: traveling the longest distance, Dorothy Barker Morency, Hudson, Fla.; youngest member, 16-month-old Schyla Varney and oldest member, Robert Stearns. Door prizes went to Dan Barker, Emilia Thi Roember, Estelle Heath and Joyce Bridge. The 50/50 raffle was won by Jean McAlister Littlefield.

Entertainment was furnished by Bumps Express DJ and Karaoke.

SMITH

The Smith family, descendants of Simon and Maryann McKeen Smith, late of Stow, met for their 21st annual reunion on Aug. 4 at the Fryeburg Fairgrounds. Over 80 relatives from as far away as North Carolina gathered to renew old relationships and to meet new "cousins."

A potluck lunch was enjoyed by all. A special event was celebrated by John and Violet Smith Fox. Their daughters, Kay Legare and Diana McLellan, surprised them with a 60th anniversary celebration. It was a complete surprise as they had celebrated the anniversary on their date in June.

Musical entertainment was provided throughout the day by the Smith family.

Prizes were given to the youngest attendee (Amy Charles of North Fryeburg); oldest (Phyllis Smith, 87, of Bethel); newest married (Lisa and John Charles of North Fryeburg); oldest married (John and Violet Fox, 60 years); most traveled (Albert and Anita Kittredge from North Carolina) and a door prize given as the eighth member to sign the guest book (Evelyn Chaplin of Fryeburg Harbor).

A committee was chosen to plan the 2003 reunion as follows: Evelyn Chaplin, Barbara Eastman, Joyce Ridlon, Anne and Jim Roberts, Ernest and Edna Smith and Paul and Dot Whitney.

The 2003 reunion will be held on the first Sunday of August. If anyone would like a notice of this event, please send a complete mailing address to Barbara Eastman, 1209 Main Road, Chatham, NH 03813.

Enjoy the year and hope to see more members at the 2003 reunion.

From the

Bethel Senior Citizens

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club met Aug. 14 at Stony Brook Campground in Hanover for their picnic and meeting, with 36 members present.

Thanks go to Eunice Powell and the cooks, Carl Brown, Rudy Royer and Roger Twitchell.

The next meeting will be Sept. 11, 11 a.m., at the North Waterford Church. Members are to bring items for the auction.

August birthdays are: Dorothy Bartlett, Dorothy Bean, Colleen Boyd, Jeanette Kimball, Arlene Lowell, Eunice Powell, Verna Thayer, Rosabelle Tift and John Winslow.

Bethel Water District

The water line to Telstar has been installed and filled. We have had nothing but favorable comments about Steve Swasey's work. Swasey's crew is now installing the sewer line to Telstar for the town. A water leak was found on Monday of last week and was repaired on Tuesday morning. To avoid mandatory water restrictions, customers are asked to limit the use of water for lawns and any other nonessential water use to the late evening or early morning hours.

From the Mollyockett Chorus

The Mollyockett Chorus of Sweet Adelines International, under the direction of Pat Fleck, is sponsoring a Four Week Vocal Improvement Program, for women of all ages, beginning Tuesday, Sept. 3 and continuing for the next three Tuesdays, through Sept. 24, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Registration will begin at 5:45 p.m. on the first night, Sept. 3.

Vocal instruction will be offered to women who are interested in learning to sing barbershop harmony. Anyone who has sung in a chorus, choir, chorale or simply for the fun of it, is invited to enroll and rekindle her vocalizing skills with members of the Mollyockett Chorus.

During this four-week program, women in central and western Maine will be given the opportunity to develop vocal and performing skills. They will learn to sing four-part a cappella harmony, with artistry and emotion, and have the fun and enjoyment of preparing for a "live" performance on stage on Sept. 28.

The Mollyockett Chorus has been performing throughout the Oxford Hills and central Maine communities since being chartered by Sweet Adelines International in 1996 in Norway. Their most recent appearance was Aug. 5 at the Maine State Chapel in Poland Springs as part of the chapel's Monday Night Concert Series. In addition, they have sung at many community events and nursing homes throughout the area. Members of the chorus hail from several towns within the area: Lewiston, Auburn, Poland, Oxford, Bethel, Newry, Waterford, Harrison, Bridgton, Bryant Pond, Stoneham, Norway and South Paris.

All women singers, interested in finding out what Sweet Adelines is all about, are cordially invited to take part in this great opportunity: the Ready-Set-Grow program. Following the four vocal lessons, singers will be provided a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to perform in the annual show of the Hillsmen Chorus, the male counterparts, in Norway on Sept. 28 complete with costume and choreography.

Chorus rehearsals are held each Tuesday evening at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Skeetfield Road, Oxford, just off Route 26. For more information, call Mollyockett Chorus Director Pat Fleck at 647-5005 or Alda Reynolds at 782-2672, or Sue Bartlett at 824-2468.

A recent development at Telstar High School is a new approach to the traditional parent-teacher conference. Most of us can certainly remember back to the time when we called school to set up a conference with our children's teachers or, perhaps, the time that the teacher called to set up a parent-teacher conference. If we as parents made the appointment, it might have been because our children never seemed to be doing any homework and we had concerns about how school was going for them. All too often, if the teacher called home, it was because Johnny or Susie was not doing so well. Oftentimes, neither parents nor teachers looked forward to those conferences. The conferences were at times negative and uncomfortable and much of the time might have been dominated by the teacher and parents with the child saying little or, more often than not, absent completely.

Since the introduction of the Promising Futures initiative, times have changed for the better. There are still times that warrant the traditional conference, but now there is also an alternative, the student-led conference. Over the past year, Telstar students have been organizing and running their conferences with their parents and their Satellite representative present. The teachers are present to act as a guide, if needed. As part of the Promising Futures program, Satellite groups set a goal to schedule as many of these student-led conferences as possible. Throughout the past year, many were held and were greeted by positive comments from parents and students alike. Students were involved in taking a much more active role in their own learning and the initial results were impressive.

The basic premise is that the student is responsible for his/her education. The student takes responsibility for this conference, he/she organizes it, sets the date, invites the parents and includes any teacher that they wish to have present. The student selects the place and time and actually conducts the conference. The invitations are usually written and sent home and the place is normally a classroom within the building. The time varies from student to student in order to match the parent's availability with that of the teachers. Some have been held later in the evening after dinner to accommodate family schedules.

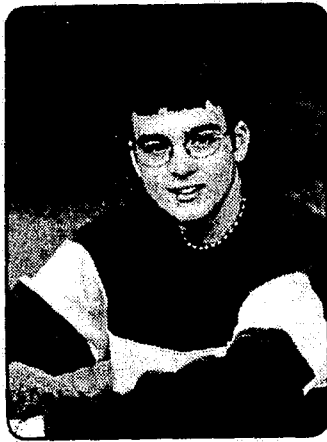

The conferences vary somewhat from student to student but, essen-

Before Buying a Home!

Where do you start when you are ready to buy a home? Before you begin looking for a home, you have to make some decisions. You need to decide what is important to you when purchasing your home. Before starting out on your home search it is a good idea to sit down and develop a list of what is important and what would you like in your new home. Your list could include schools, neighborhood, amenities, number of bedrooms, number of baths, a basement, a separate dining room, 2-story family room or foyer, one level ranch plan, master bedroom on the main level, special financing, seller willing to cover closing costs and the list goes on and on. An experienced buyer real estate agent can help you through the process. There is no such thing as a perfect house, therefore once you have developed your list you should begin to prioritize it. You can prioritize into, must have, should have and would be nice to have. By having a clear understanding what you want in your new home, and the priority of those items, you will be in a much better position to decide whether you want to put an offer on a house you see and like. It is also a good idea to consider whether you want to purchase a new or pre-owned home.

Agency Relationships

Who is a client?
A client is a person who establishes an agency relationship with and agrees to be represented by an agent in a real estate transaction.

A Seller becomes a client of a real estate company by entering into a listing agreement with a licensee associated with a company.

Depending on the type of property and the agreement, the listing may or may not be in writing. However, it is generally a good idea to have the agreement in writing so that the terms and the obligations of both the seller and the licensee/company are clearly established.

A Buyer becomes a client of a real estate company by entering into a buyer representation agreement with a licensee associated with a company. Although not required, it is generally a good idea to have the agreement in writing so that the terms and the obligations of both the buyer and the licensee/company are clearly established.

Who is an agent?
An Agent is the licensee who by mutual agreement will act on your direction and represent your interests above all others in a real estate transaction.

Acting on your behalf, your agent will employ his/her best efforts to negotiate the best price and terms in a real estate transaction. Your agent owes utmost loyalty to you, the client, and must pass on to you any information he or she knows which might influence your decision to buy or sell. You can rely on your agent to preserve confidential information provided by you. You can expect to receive timely accounting of money or property related to and received during your relationship with your agent.

What is a dual agent?
In certain situations, a licensee may act as an agent for and represent both the buyer and the seller in the same transaction. This is called dual agency since one agent represents both parties and both parties remain clients of the company. The possibilities and consequences of dual agency representation must be explained to you by the licensee. Both the buyer and the seller must consent to this type of representation in writing.

Working with a dual agent is not the same as having your own exclusive agent. For instance, when representing both a buyer and a seller, the dual agent must not disclose to one party any confidential information obtained from the other party. Also, a dual agent may not be the advocate for either party and cannot negotiate for nor advise as to the price or terms of the transaction.

It is important that you discuss dual agency with the licensee in order to understand the limits of representation that a dual agent can provide. If the company you are working with practices disclosed dual agency, you must determine whether or not you would be willing to agree to limited representation by your agent.

Do you want to be a customer or a client?

Do you want to only receive information and assistance from a real estate licensee (in which case you would be a customer) or do you wish to be represented by a licensee (in which case you would be a Client)? A licensee is not required to represent either the buyer or the seller.

To understand your options, discuss this issue with the real estate licensee with whom you are working. It is important to you and the licensee that your working relationship with the licensee be established and acknowledged and that you are aware of the services the licensee will or will not provide. Not all companies offer the same choices for representation. At your discretion, it may be advisable to obtain legal or other professional advice that you believe is necessary to protect your interests.
